Sandpile
Surfing
In Sun

Surfing without getting wet is the sport invented Thursday by three Victoria misses, sunning themselves at Willow Beach as the temperature rose to 66 degrees. Pile of sand thrown up by workmen was utilized by Anne McKeachie, 14, of 3134 Glasgow, Rue Ireland, 15, of 838 Reed, and Sue Crowther, 14, 1134 Finlayson, on miniature surfboard. More sunny weather is promised for today. —(William Boucher).

B.C. Won't Buy Voteless Bank Shares

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Thursday the provincial government is not interested in investing in shares of the proposed Bank of British Columbia unless it has voting power on the board.

While shares in the B.C. bank would be a "wonderful investment," the government could not avoid its responsibility to the public by investing in common shares with no voting rights, he said.

"As fiscal agent (for government accounts) you can't avoid your responsibility. If we invested public money in common shares they would have to be voting shares," Premier Bennett said.

The premier declined to comment on other proposed changes in the Bank Act until the Bill would allow provincial governments to buy up to 10 per cent of shares on a non-voting basis.

Mr. Bennett, who originally announced in his capacity as minister of finance that B.C. would buy 25 per cent of the B.C. bank shares, said Ottawa has already been notified that B.C. will not invest in the bank.

If the government bought shares without having any voting rights, he asked, "how could you be responsible for public money?"

Western Bank Wins Approval from Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill incorporating the Bank of Western Canada was passed by the Senate Thursday. It was the first new bank charter granted by Parliament since 1953.

The bill was passed by the Commons Tuesday after two years of delays in both houses and needs only royal assent to become law.

Hellyer

Minister Pinned Over Brass Shuffle

It's Supremo Hellyer Now

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—To the House of Commons, it's Supremo Hellyer now.

Conservative defence critic Gordon Churchill, himself a former defence minister, performed the christening ceremony Thursday with a question in the House.

Was Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, now self-promoted to commander-in-chief, he asked?

Mr. Hellyer, grinned, shrugged, didn't answer.

Former Conservative justice minister Davie Fulton fired the opening round.

It signalled the first time the opposition has tried zero-ing in on the double-jumping of Commodore Ralph "Spike" Hemmings over the heads of four rear admirals to vice-admiral and comptroller-general at Canadian Forces Headquarters.

How come, asked Mr. Fulton, that three senior officers had been retired before their time?

Did it have anything to do with the Hellyer insistence on forces integration?

(The three officers, Lieut.-Gen. Robert Moncel, 49, vice-chief of staff; Vice-Admiral Kenneth Dyer, 50, chief of personnel; and Lieut.-Gen. Frank J. Fleury, comptroller general, all were involved in the Tuesday reshuffle of the CFHQ high command which he a p-frogged. Vice-Admiral Hemmings to next in line as chief of defence staff.)

Prickly question, Fulton's.

And Speaker Lucien Lamoureux knew it, rule it out of order.

Red Pilots Fire First Air Rockets

WASHINGTON (AP)—North Vietnamese MiG-21s fired missiles at U.S. fighter-bombers Thursday in what U.S. officials believe to be the first Communist use of such air-to-air weapons in the Viet Nam war. The Communist missiles missed, the officials said.

The engagement involving two of the most advanced Soviet-built fighters in North Viet Nam and two U.S. F-105 fighter-bombers occurred 33 miles north-northwest of Hanoi Thursday morning.

TOKYO (UPI)—North Viet Nam today broadcast purported confessions of American pilots downed over the Communist territory.

Another Hanoi broadcast monitored in Saigon said three women, described as workers, called for the execution of captured American servicemen. The women said in the broadcast, "we must execute these Johnsonians."

Mulligan was said to have been flying an A-4 jet off the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise when he was shot down.

"Since my capture, I have realized that the war which is waged by the United States government is dirty and bad," Hatcher was quoted as saying.

"U.S. aircraft have bombed, under order of the U.S. government, various targets in North Viet Nam, resulting in the damage of dams, dikes, schools, hospitals, churches and innocent people."

"I hope that this illegal war waged by our government will end soon . . . I wish to repeat and ask you to forgive me."

Scottish Keep The Kilt

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Hellyer told the Commons Thursday it is his intention to retain the kilt as the dress uniform for Highland units.

At the same time he told Lloyd R. Crouse (PC-Quebec), Lünenberg) and H. Russell MacEwan (PC-Pictou) that he has not yet decided what uniform will be worn by Canada's integrated armed forces.

Airmen 'Confess'

Muligan was quoted saying, "I believe there is really no way for the United States to win this war."

"This war in Viet Nam had no appeal for me, it was an unjust war against people who never did anything to the detriment of the United States interests."

The best way for the United States to save thousands of young Americans and American honor is by completely withdrawing from Viet Nam and let the people settle their own affairs and cease all bombing immediately in North Viet Nam."

"For my own crime I beg your forgiveness and request that you treat me humanely and allow me to have some part in ending this dirty war waged by our government."

Hellyer Tabbed Supremo

But persuasively. Mr. Fulton asked that because of the urgency of the matter and the "serious implications," a point to be stretched to allow Mr. Hellyer to answer—if he cared to.

Graciously, Mr. Speaker bowed—always happy, he said, "to stretch a point" in a good cause.

So Mr. Hellyer climbed to his feet to inform the expectant House that the three early retirements had been "by mutual understanding."

(And "mutual understanding," it was explained later by CFHQ brass, meant just that.) The three officers had been offered other postings without loss of rank. They declined. Those, instead, requested that explanation, and baffled by Mr. Hellyer's reference to "mutual understanding," attempted, unsuccessfully, to pursue it.

Was it CFHQ policy now, he wanted to know, that officers are to be retired—and early at that—just when they have reached the prime of their years of responsibility and peak powers of decision, at the very time of their maximum contribution?"

This time Mr. Speaker ruled the question out of order and made it stick.

Up leaped Gordon Churchill.

Were the early retirements made on the advice of the chief of the defence staff, when given the floor again by Mr. Speaker, declined on of the defence minister playing at being his own commander in chief and dismissing "those who resist his innovations."

Here "innovations" clearly meant integration, the one service name—"Royal Canadian Marines"—and, of course, the one same-for-officers-and-men uniform all-round green.

The defence minister unrefined didn't answer—didn't have to, for again he stepped Mr. Speaker.

But he did say later that there was "still no final decision" on the uniform. (Green it will be, though.)

Still later, Mr. Churchill when given the floor again by Mr. Speaker, declined on grounds that he was sick of asking defence minister Hellyer questions and getting no answers.

Nudies Create Hazard

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—

The U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals has granted the City of Grand Prairie, Tex., the right "to prohibit showing of nude or burlesque-type movies" at two drive-in theatres.

The city said the films create a traffic problem on the highway alongside the theatres and contribute to auto accidents.

Vaccine Can Eliminate Measles' Hazards

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD
Dear Dr. Molner: My grandson recently came down with chicken pox and I advised my daughter-in-law to keep him inside a dark room because some children's diseases can affect the heart and eyes. Of course I am old-fashioned! Am I wrong in reminding a young mother of the dangers of children's diseases? — MRS. J. M.

There's nothing old-fashioned about health protection. You are not wrong in advising that a child with an infectious disease be kept in and kept quiet. For one thing, it prevents spreading the disease.

There are other reasons, too, particularly relating to measles and mumps. The darkened room is for measles. The disease does not affect the eyes in a damaging sense, but it causes photophobia or abnormal sensitivity to light. Subdued light (it does not need to be a totally dark room) is more comfortable. A more serious matter is the possibility of encephalitis or other complications from measles. Keeping the child quietly in bed lets high master his physical resources to throw off the infection and avoid complications which can be extremely serious and even cause death.

Now that effective measles vaccine is available, this disease and its dangerous complications can be prevented—if parents will just see that their children have this vaccination.

With mumps, keeping a child quiet and in bed is for much the same reason: To prevent complications, which are most likely to affect the ovaries, testicles and pancreas.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it valley fever caused by allergy? Is it a mental disorder? — V. G.

No, it just means no cancer cells are present where the smear was taken. (The same type is being used to see whether abnormal cells are present in the sputum when lung X-rays are suspicious.)

NOTE TO MRS. C. H.: There are many types and strains of the Salmonella germ, which is notorious for causing diarrhea, "food poisoning" and similar unpleasantnesses. Not knowing more of the case, I cannot answer all of your questions.

British Reject Raids

LONDON (CP)—The House of Commons Thursday night endorsed the British government's decision to disassociate Britain from American bombing of oil depots near Hanoi and Haiphong.

An opposition motion criticizing the Labor government's policy was defeated by a vote of 311 to 230—a majority of 101.

The motion asked the Commons to support American military measures to "convince the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong that they cannot win the war."

The opposition motion took the form of an amendment to a government motion asking for approval of its policy.

This also resulted in a victory for the government, but this time the majority dropped to 69. The voting was 299 to 230.

Nearly 40 of Wilson's left-wing rebels, who urged him to extend British criticism to cover all aspects of U.S. military policies in Viet Nam, abstained from voting.

The Labor party normally has a 95-seat over-all majority in the Commons.

Wilson told the crowded House no government could give another nation a blank cheque, and his administration had decided that when bombing raids reached within two or three miles of North Vietnamese cities the time had come to make the break.

Earlier, a leading Labor party left-winger, Konni Zilliacus, said that as long as Britain's leaders back the United States they will be regarded "as stool pigeons of the American eagle, and not doves of peace."

Remnants of Oil Depot Blasted by Americans

(From AP-Reuters)

SAIGON (CP)—The U.S. navy said today the remnants of Haiphong's oil storage depot suffered heavy damage in Thursday's raid by navy Skyhawks.

Pilot reports on the bombing, agency Ceteka said inhabitants of the navy said, showed almost three-quarters of facilities that survived the air strike of June 29 were destroyed.

It was estimated that 20 percent of the complex had survived the first attack.

GATEWAY

The navy said tanks, storage areas and dock facilities were hit in the latest assault.

The Haiphong depot, two miles northwest of the centre of the city, was once the gateway for 85 per cent of the petroleum supplies for the North Viet Nam war machine.

The Haiphong raid eliminated a week of intensified American air activity over North Viet Nam, marked Wednesday by a record high of 113 multiple-plane missions.

PRISONERS

A South Vietnamese army spokesman announced government troops killed 234 Viet Cong and supporting planes accounted for 200 more heavy casualties Wednesday. One was in the Mekong delta 50 miles southwest of Saigon and the other in the Phu My sector 280 miles northeast of Saigon.

Washington authorities accused North Viet Nam of violating the Geneva convention for humane treatment of war prisoners in parading captured American pilots Wednesday through the streets of Hanoi.

The Radio Hanoi, which said the pilots were hanged and mauled under armed escort through demonstrating crowds, revived past hints that they might be tried on war crimes charges. As of last Saturday, the Pentagon listed 34 Americans detained by the North Vietnamese.

The essence of Lackey's statement was that he was at the wheel of a car July 11, 1964 when fellow Klansmen Joseph Howard Sims and Cecil Myers fired shotgun blasts into Penn's car. Sims, Myers and George Turner were tried last week in the Penn case, but the verdict that trial was ordered sealed until a decision is reached in the present case.

Price Index Pushed Up By Food, Health Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer price index rose four-tenths of a point in June, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

Based on 1949 prices equaling 100, the index reached 143.8 in June compared to 143.4 in May. The June index was 3.5 percent above the June, 1965, index of 139.

The bureau has no exact parallel index of wages. A new index of average industrial index remained unchanged from weekly wages and salaries May.

TORONTO (CP)—Leiterman sent a memorandum to Reeves Haggan, saying he would accept a contract giving him full responsibility for selection of scripts and principal artists.

He said in prepared statement he is taking the action, which he has been considering for many months, because of "sordid manoeuvres" the corporation has been going through "to rid itself of Douglas Leiterman."

He said he did not approve of some of Mr. Leiterman's activities in the last few days.

PUSHED TOO FAR

However, he added, the executive affairs program This Hour Has Seven Days has "been pushed too far by an insatigant and insensitive senior management."

"I have done all in my power to reach a productive relationship with this senior management," the statement continued. "Their attitude has made this impossible."

He said he believes the CBC will live through the present crisis and regretted that he will not be able to follow through with the start he has made with Marc Thibault, his counterpart on the French network, toward co-operative programming.

Mr. Haggan said he has no immediate plans for the future.

OBJECT TO CONTRACT

Meanwhile, CBC management announced Thursday night that acceptance of a contract for next season by Mr. Leiterman is not in accordance with requirements stipulated by the CBC's board of directors.

A CBC spokesman said the board will issue a full statement today.

'Roads Unimaginative'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A landscape architect said Thursday straight, plain, unimaginative highways cause accidents.

Phillip W. Tattersfield said at the Western Canadian Conference on Roadside Development statistics show that 60 per cent of all traffic accidents occur on straight sections of highways.

He advocated highways contoured to the area, beautified by roadside planting and spotted with rest areas.

This would help reduce some of the common causes of highway hypnosis.

Mr. Tattersfield is president of the B.C. Society of Landscape Architects.

Costly Obligation

PRIME MINISTER Harold Wilson has decided on a "massive reduction" of the number of British troops in Malaysia. And Dr. Arnold Toynbee, a distinguished and astute observer of the far-ranging effects of British foreign policy decisions, called it "significant" in an article on this page earlier this week.

Dr. Toynbee, however, points out that a total evacuation of British forces in this area is what Malaysia is demanding, and implies the British intention of continuing to support with arms an unpopular native ruler in Borneo.

He is referring, one must suppose, to the recent difficulties in Sarawak where British security forces, there for the purpose and at the invitation of the authorities, met and dispersed a force of Communist infiltrators from the Indonesian section of the island.

These invaders were trained in terrorist tactics against Sarawak at a time when Indonesia was still engrossed in President Sukarno's grandiose ideas for extending his territory at Malaysia's expense. It was all part of his policy of "confrontation" and his frequently expressed hope of destroying the British-sponsored federation which, besides Malaya, Sarawak and Sabah, in Borneo, at that time included Singapore.

Although the confrontation has officially ended and a friendship pact has been signed, the Communists in Borneo don't know it or prefer to ignore it.

Moreover, they are formidable. They have a potential of something like 20,000 fighters in Sarawak alone, capable of operating in a country of swamp, jungle and mountains, sadly lacking in road communications, and therefore ideally suited to guerrilla operations.

This little legacy from President Sukarno may be an embarrassment to Indonesia but it will be rather more than that to the people of Sarawak, so dependent on British protection: since James Brooke was installed as the White Rajah in 1841, in fact.

The impatience of many Britons, as well as their friends—not to mention their enemies—to hasten the end of imperial responsibility for one reason or another has resulted in chaotic conditions in many of the new African states. Undoubtedly it was the restraining influence of the British at New Delhi which kept the sharp knives of racial and religious factions sheathed. And the India-Pakistan wars came only with independence.

Much the same situation exists in Malaysia today and it is very doubtful—in spite of the determination of the government to hurry the departure of the British—whether it has the strength or experience to cope with the complications it must inherit.

The British would like nothing better than to disengage from costly commitments. But it says much for Mr. Wilson's and his government's recognition of a moral obligation, that they have resisted the temptation to excuse themselves from responsibility and slash the cost of a role of protector and adviser they can no longer afford.

Needless Purchase

BY THE TRADITION of party politics an opposition MLA is never likely to enthuse over anything the government does, but there is considerable point to Mr. Alan Macfarlane's objection to Mr. Gagliardi's purchase of a half-million-dollar jet aircraft.

This money he asserts is a needless extravagance and would be better spent on aiding hospitals in their financial dilemmas. Such a sum for instance if put at the use of local hospitals could reduce cardiac deaths by 30 per cent through the purchase of badly-needed equipment, he says.

There will be many citizens who will agree with him.

For his part the highways minister says the jet in question will save the government both time and money. Just exactly how is not at all clear. Mr. Gagliardi is personally geared to speed both on land and in the air but at best a jet plane means only an hour or two's difference in getting to any given place in the province.

Neither the work of his department or his own personal convenience—not that of any other member of the government—would be impaired by continuing to use the aircraft presently at his disposal.

Roads, like Rome, are not built in a day, nor are cabinet decisions on any subject dependent on split-second timing. The matter of a freeway for example has hung fire for more than a year without being resolved.

This new jet plane caters to the minister's own love of fast travel, but in essence that is all it does. It is not certain, perhaps not even likely, that if not purchased its cost would be allocated for hospital use, but the comparison Mr. Macfarlane draws is cogent.

The expenditure seems altogether redundant; and the money could much more reasonably be applied elsewhere.

Northern Pioneers

NORTHERN AFFAIRS Minister Arthur Laing has received a response that may have surprised him to his challenge that too few Canadians have the pioneer spirit to seek opportunities in the north. The resultant letters and telephone enquiries from persons wanting to go north have satisfied him now that "there's nothing wrong with Canadians' pioneer blood, young or old, except that from time to time it needs stirring."

By a little stirring in the present instance, Mr. Laing will probably have recruited at least some dozens of individuals and couples whose skills in a variety of professions and trades will soon be applied in northern development. All of the more than 200 persons who have written to his department will be answered and asked to provide details of experience and the kind of jobs they believe they could perform; interviews will be arranged for those who seem promising.

But for each one who has written, there must be many more—perhaps hundreds more—who have felt tempted to look into the prospects in this fashion and, for one reason or another, have done nothing about it.

As long as the north suffers a lack of pioneer blood, therefore, the answer would seem to lie in continued stirring—not just a little from time to time.

Mr. Laing's department might well consider, in the light of the present experience, if it is doing all it reasonably can by way of publicity to let Canadians in all parts of the country know of the employment opportunities that exist.

Will the real Mr. Polyansky please stand up . . . ?

Thinking Aloud

"...of shoes, and ships, and sealing was . . ."

ONE REACTS with sympathy to a shared experience; to the intimacy that memory brings sharply into focus.

Thus when I recently watched Rotary president Jack Houseau hand a thousand-dollar cheque for a new cardiothoracope to Jubilee Hospital administrator George Masters my feelings were stirred.

Mr. Masters accepted this generous gift with obvious emotion. His "thank you, thank you," was fervent and moving. For he correctly described it as a life-saver.

Yours truly has personal cause to realize the great value of this scientific device, a visual monitor that can be the precious guardian of acutely ill heart patients. Having been attached to one with blessed results a year ago I felt equally moved.

There is nothing like personal experience to replace unwitting indifference with intimate understanding.

How are you, I asked a colleague yesterday morn and she replied: "I'm still waiting for summer."

There are a lot of people. The sun may be shining as you read this but we've had a dreich stretch of weather these past few weeks. And of course, spoilt as we are in this favored corner of the earth, we think fate isn't being fair.

Doleful days induce doleful moods. Actually weather doesn't affect me greatly, mentally that is, but still I, too, would prefer a summer that lives up to its name.

And, you know, we are in the second leg of the year. The longest day has passed and we're now headed for — dare I mention it? — December. Nothing can stop the progression.

Shattering to think we are only 170 days away from Christmas, isn't it? And even one of them shorter than its predecessor.

I should have known better. I usually do, but I suppose old acquaintances is hard to do down.

So when I read a headline that professional football would start here in the fall I wondered for a moment what kind of football.

I am well aware there are three kinds of football: the game with the round ball I grew up with; kicking about, known hereabouts as soccer; that played with the oval named after an English public school; and the North American game adored by the R.C. Lions.

And, as a sports lover even if nowadays viciousous, I am somewhat familiar with their differing nuances.

The item couldn't have referred to either than the N.A. game, where incidentally the foot doesn't often propel the ball. But there it was; for a second or two I dithered. Funny thing, the human mind.

It was pleasing to note from the white paper on CBC broadcasting that as the capital city a TV channel will be reserved for Victoria.

Not actively for a while. At first only as a repeater station, but looking to the day when programs originate here.

This should let Victoria talent and producing capacity get into the CBC act. And break the monopoly Vancouver has — to the benefit of its artists and entertainers — as the westmost outlet of the national chain. As with Toronto's TV coterie, outsiders don't at present have much of a look-in.

When the time comes Victoria can thus be expected to put itself on the Canadian television map. The quality is here, also, waiting only for the chance to show itself.

Martin's Credibility in Doubt In Tender Role as Peace Broker

By PHILIP DEANE

AT about the exact time our Mr. Martin was "fighting" Mr. Polyansky, assuming the Russian that the Americans really want a negotiated peace in Viet Nam and that we have acted as Washington's honest broker, more or less, American planes were bombing the suburbs of Haiphong and Haiphong, a clear escalation of the war, a narrowing of the sanctuary from skyborn death for the civilians of North Viet Nam's population centres. Our diplomats who read the U.S. press surely warned Mr. Martin.

I do not blame him for resenting Mr. Polyansky's manners; the latter overstepped the bounds of international etiquette in making an anti-American speech from a Canadian forum and in the presence of Canadian cabinet ministers.

In rebuking Mr. Polyansky — for Mr. Martin's answer was a polite rebuke — our foreign minister chose to identify himself with the American position.

Mr. McNamara told the press that this raid occurred because the Communists rely more and more on trucks and powered junks for infiltration into South Viet Nam and that consequently hitting oil dumps was a legitimate, and by implication, a defensive step. No western press reporter as far as I have talked about the heavy losses inflicted on that is caused by bombing raids in urban areas. Bombing is not accurate; the smoke shot up to five miles; there must have been bombs for delayed detonation which will have made firefighting difficult. And who knows how far the flames spread?

I'll leave the question of justification aside. The point I want to make first is that the American press has been telling us of forthcoming escalation for some time; and I don't mean press reports as far as I have talked about the heavy losses inflicted on that is caused by bombing raids in urban areas. Bombing is not accurate; the smoke shot up to five miles; there must have been bombs for delayed detonation which will have made firefighting difficult. And who knows how far the flames spread?

My respect for the powers of irony at the command of our minister of agriculture, Mr. J. Green grew when I heard he had described the Martin-Polyansky debate as the best fight since the Liston-Clay bout.

India Looks Anxiously Toward Bhutan Borders

By B. C. MAG

that they would only have to descend from the northern heights to the valleys of Bhutan, whereas in the case of the rescuing Indian army, they would have to struggle their way from the plain up the steeply rising ranges to meet the invaders.

Bhutan is honeycombed with Red Chinese spies and saboteurs. They are selling the kind of NFA under Communist occupation, the Mosques and other NFA tribes. They are of short stature with darker complexion and features smaller than the big, burly Bhutias living to its west.

With widely varying physique, dialects, manners and customs, these different ethnic groups live isolated from each other with no feeling of national cohesion.

Though Bhutan's defense is in God's omnipotence, no Indian army is allowed to be stationed within its territory. They are encamped outside its southern boundary.

The result is that the Red Chinese penetrate into Bhutan, the rescuing troops from India would not be able to reach the theatre of war before the invading army had entrenched itself.

Bhutan only recently has agreed to organize a modern army with the assistance of Indian army personnel. It long was reluctant to accept any help from India.

Under its five-year plan with the financial support of India, Bhutan is building five highways, four running from north to south and one from east to west. The first of these highways, about 107 miles long, running from Poco to Phuentsholing on the Indian border, has been completed. It has reduced a full six days' hard trekking from the Indian border to Poco to less than a day's journey by jeep.

About 800 miles of new roads are yet to be built. When all of the highways are completed, it will facilitate quick dispatch of troops from India to any part of Bhutan in an emergency.

Buttes. In the foothills to the west of the Arunachal River, they have been supplanted by the Shyam Nepalese who take up waste lands and convert them to till. The Nepalese are not allowed to possess land east of the river.

The high Black Mountains across the country from north to south is another great ethnic divide. People living in its east have affinities with the Assamese, the Mosques and other NFA tribes. They are of short stature with darker complexion and features smaller than the big, burly Bhutias living to its west.

Rate Formula Explained

Bank Vote Threat to Grits

By RON COLLISTER
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The minority government faces the threat of defeat if it tries to force through Parliament an initial seven per cent ceiling on bank loans.

Prime Minister Pearson is understood to recognize the danger and to be hoping that a Commons committee, in the fall, will work out another formula and take him off the hook.

In revealing its plans for Bank Act revision, the government showed that when the country gets out of its present high-interest period, there will be no limit on bank interest.

HOW IT STAYS

And that, according to government sources, is how it will stay, whatever the state of the economy.

The government is gambling that competition between the banks will keep down the interest rate. But conceivably, it could soar to any height.

Thursday night the government was blasted by Tories and New Democrats for giving Canada the highest interest rates in history.

Its formula would raise the ceiling from six per cent to seven per cent initially.

This would be done by allowing one-and-a-half-quarter per cent above the average yield on short-term government bonds, which was 5.16 per cent in the three months ended May 31.

The rate would be adjusted to the nearest quarter of one per cent which would make it seven cent ceiling, which was "too high."

He had voted with the government because he wanted to approve the resolution on the Bank Act and not to block legislation.

"We will deal with the legislation as it comes along," he said.

Mr. Thompson said the government is in trouble over interest rate changes.

But he had been advised by the government that it was willing to compromise, if that was what the majority wishes.

"It's the only stand they can take," he added, "if they want to avoid defeat on it."

The loyalty of the Liberal rebels is another hazard.

At their caucus this week, they agreed to fight the battle in the fall, and, meanwhile, to stand with the government in a vote on the resolution.

SCORES HELP

Eighty-two Liberals were aided by one independent, J. A. Mongrain of Three Rivers, Que., and three Scores led by Robert Thompson.

Against were: 45 Tories, eight New Democrats and six Creditistes.

If the Scores stayed in line and the Liberal rebels stayed loyal to the party, the minority government would not be in trouble.

'TOO HIGH'

But, as he emerged from the Commons after the vote, Scores leader Thompson said his group would not vote for a seven per cent ceiling, which was "too high."

He had voted with the government because he wanted to approve the resolution on the Bank Act and not to block legislation.

"We will deal with the legislation as it comes along," he said.

The loyalty of the Liberal rebels is another hazard.

At their caucus this week, they agreed to fight the battle in the fall, and, meanwhile, to stand with the government in a vote on the resolution.

EVERYTHING AFFECTED

Creditiste leader Real Caouette said the new rate was "nonsense" — affecting everything the consumer buys.

"I'll fight it as strongly as I can," he said.

One of the glimmers of hope for the minority government is that the Tories may split on the issue.

There is no guarantee that they won't abstain or vote against the government in the fall, heightening the danger.

New Democrat Max Saltzman (Waterloo-South) warned Thursday night that the proposed changes mean soaring interest rates.

Other lending institutions would follow, he said.

"To remove the ceiling without proper safeguards," he said, "will be to raise the cost of every single thing in this country — especially in housing and small business."

George Hees, former Tory trade minister, said the party would vote against the Bank Act revisions.

One of the important objectives of the Conservative party, he said, was to bring down the interest rates paid by every Canadian.

SAME RULES

This could best be done by bringing all lending institutions in Canada under the Bank Act, enabling them to operate under the same rules, and to engage in all-out competition.

"We are convinced that this kind of competition will provide the lowest interest rates and the best service possible to the people of this country," Mr. Hees said.

Referring to near-banks (which are provincially chartered and not covered by the draft bill), Mr. Hees said that all financial institutions can be brought under the act by consultation with the provinces.

PROVISIONS ANXIOUS

The provinces were just as anxious to do this and lower interest rates.

Mr. Hees pointed out that the Porter Commission had recommended removal of the ceiling and the inclusion of near-banks in the Bank Act.

When the government brought the near-banks under the legislation, "we shall be very pleased indeed to support this measure. Until then, we intend to oppose it."

The 120-page draft bill rules out increases in interest on existing loans.

Relief Fund Still Short

TORONTO (CP) — The United Church of Canada Indian famine relief campaign is some $21,000 short of its $100,000 objective, but contributions are still coming in, a church spokesman said here. Rt. Rev. E. M. House, church moderator, had asked congregations to contribute to a fund to pay for seeds, fertilizers, food, water and their distribution in India. So far, $78,877 has been forwarded to the church.

U.K. Crusade Cheers Billy

SOUTHAMPTON, England (UPI)—Evangelist Billy Graham sailed for the United States Thursday aboard the liner Queen Mary convinced his month-long London crusade was a success and that tales of British moral decay are exaggerated.

"I found tremendous religious influence in Britain and was in every way greatly encouraged by what I saw and felt in the new, young generation," Graham told reporters.

Law and the Driver

Many motorists are not aware of the clauses of the Motor Vehicle Act. For their benefit, the Victoria Chamber of Commerce traffic safety committee has prepared a list of traffic regulations with explanations where needed.

Not included are clauses which refer specifically to professional drivers.

SECTION 148 (1) Duty When Overtaking and When Overtaken

Except as provided in Section 149, the driver of a vehicle overtaking another vehicle:

- (a) shall cause the vehicle to pass to the left of the other vehicle at a safe distance; and
- (b) shall not cause or permit the vehicle to return to the right side of the highway till it is safely clear of the overtaken vehicle.

Comment

When passing an overtaken vehicle this section requires a driver to do two things:

- (a) pass to the left of the other vehicle at a safe distance away from it; and
- (b) after passing shall not pull back over to the right side of the roadway till he is completely clear.

If a driver does the two things mentioned above, there is very little danger of causing an accident by cutting the other vehicle off and possibly forcing it off the road.

There are exceptions to the above requirements provided for in Section 149 of the Motor Vehicle Act.

Ripple Rock Goes Again

Ripple Rock will be blown up again this summer in Beacon Hill Park—in a National Film Board movie.

Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A Western Hemisphere Commonwealth bloc which could become a new voice in the United Nations and other world agencies was born here Thursday night at a glittering state banquet.

Leaders of three Caribbean nations joined with Prime Minister Pearson in predicting a glowing future featuring much closer relations between their nations and Canada.

More important, however, are the obvious political and cultural ties that are being made.

PEARSON
Each of the visiting leaders credited Mr. Pearson for calling the conference, which is cementing the often-quarrelling Caribbean nations into a single regional entity.

Prime Minister Pearson announced that Canada has offered to pay the bulk of the cost of a Canada-Caribbean broadcasting network.

To cost about $5,000,000, the network will be designed to unify the 13 nations and tie them closer to Canada.

OTHER AID
Contributions to the network are over and above the $71,000,000 in external aid this country has already pledged over the next five years.

Transport Minister Pickering announced that Canada will consider organizing a mail service with any West Indian country interested.

Immigration Minister Marland announced a three-pronged program which will increase West Indian immigration to this country.

When it comes to whisky, the Jones' can afford to please themselves.

Yet they don't let others dictate their taste. They have taste of their own.

Seattle's Glenacres Has Three in Semis

By JIM TANG

Next men's Pacific Northwest Golf Association champion will be from Seattle, and the chances are that he will be from Glenacres Golf Club.

In a coup perhaps never before equalled in a tournament that dates back to 1899, Elvin Fanning, Ted Naff and Bob Carlson of Glenacres all survived as two rounds yesterday at the Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club cut the championship field to four.

The fourth spot in the semi-finals was held by Erv Parent, 49-year-old veteran of the Seattle Golf Club who has never had a PINGA win in his long list of tournament successes, although reaching the final in 1956.

Vancouver, where he was beaten by Bob Carlson.

Unexpectedly among the missing for today's 36-hole semi-finals is medalist Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver, who was eight under par after his first three rounds on the course where he won the Canadian junior championship in 1963.

Vollmer, still playing well and only two over the par of 70, was beaten out in yesterday's first round, beaten 1 up by Doug Olson, University of Houston sophomore from Medford, Ore.

Olson then lost in the quarter-finals to Elwin Fanning, University of Houston senior, who is now rated the most likely to succeed by most of those who have been following the tournament.

Naff, 27-year-old former Washington State junior champion, qualified to meet Fanning in one semi-final with a 4 and 3 win over Victoria junior John Morland and a 2 and 1 win over Bob Baldi, California State champion from Oswego Lake, Ore., who is reportedly planning to turn professional.

Carlson, a 22-year-old red-head who would be a lightweight if he took up boxing, became the tournament's dark-horse with two well-played victories following after his elimination of defending champion George Holland on Wednesday.

Owner of a solid game and appearing to grow stronger as the day neared its end, Carlson opened yesterday with a 2 and 1 win over Kent Myers of Oswego Lake and then followed that with a rally which put down Victoria veteran Vic Painter, 4 and 3.

Carlson then had to struggle all the way in a 1-up win over Jim Taggart of Portland and a 2-up decision over Dick Price of Long Beach.

Jay, who had to be lured out of retirement at the start of the season, hasn't been enjoying a solid game and

One Canadian Woman Left In PNGA Championships

The fashion world was set abuzz Thursday by the official of Kilmarnock last, 4 and 3, to 20th hole. Miss MacWha was herself about a 10-foot putt. She sank it, although the ball sat on the lip.

Miss Reeves had about a 15-foot putt, she struck the ball family it can about two feet past the cup, and she missed good drives, but Miss MacWha hit her 12-footer flat.

Thursday, however, it looked like a Canadian washout. Miss Palmer was defeated in time to watch Miss Hitchens go out on the 17th green, and nobody gave much thought to Miss MacWha and Miss Reeves.

Mrs. Harbottle, the latter pair tees off at 9:55, and the former at 10.

Fisherman Feared Dead

Freckles to Spare

DILLINGHAM, Alaska (CP) — A violent Bristol Bay storm swamped and sank a 26-foot fishing boat early Wednesday, apparently carrying a College Place, Wash., teacher to his death.

Another College Place man was rescued after he lost consciousness in the icy water. He was brought to a hospital here and quickly recovered from shock and exposure.

Missing and presumed dead is Kenneth Groves, assistant business manager and faculty member of Walla Walla College, a Seventh Day Adventists institution near Walla Walla.

NO TRACE

Alaska state trooper R. G. Blackman said Thursday no trace of Groves or the lost boat, mouth of the Nushagak River the Lee Ann had been found. Survival time in the frigid waters is little more than 15 minutes.

The Lee Ann was owned by Harley Bagley, 24, who was rescued. He and Groves had done commercial fishing in Bristol Bay for several summers.

Blackman said the boat apparently grounded on a sandbar in an incoming tide during a heavy storm and swamped from the rear.

MISSING

The two men radioed for help and the call was answered by another fishing vessel, the Ida Dell, which was some distance away.

The two men had been fishing for salmon in the area.

about 20 miles from here. Bagley said after his discharge from the hospital he planned to return to the canary.

OTHER TRAGEDIES

Groves had been scheduled to return to College Place next week for summer teaching. He held a master's degree in biology and taught science courses.

Earlier storms in the bay resulted in the loss of several other boats since the season opened with a 14-year-old known drowned and two other men missing, all Alaskans.

Girl Steals Groceries As Sorority Initiation

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 21-year-old student was fined $100 Wednesday for a theft she said she committed as part of an initiation to a sorority at a Halifax university.

Jeanette McLaughlin of Vancouver told Magistrate Douglas Hume that initiation into the Alpha Delta Gamma sorority of Dalhousie University required theft of property worth more than $3.

She pleaded guilty to stealing meat and cheese worth $5.12 from a downtown department store.

The magistrate ordered a transcript of the proceedings forwarded to the university president and to the president of the sorority.

LAWNS

A beautiful, well-groomed, year-round green lawn is a valuable asset to any home and neighborhood. That's why so many homeowners spend every year much effort and expense for fertilizers and weedkilling ingredients in order to obtain a first-class looking lawn. Unfortunately the results are as a rule disappointing because lawns even when constantly well watered and looked after, can only stand up to the impact of hot dry summer weather if they are protected by a heavy layer of turf. Topdressing of existing lawns is the only way to obtain such a layer of turf.

Contrary to general belief summer is the best time for lawn topdressing. For a free estimate and expert advice regarding the topdressing of any particular lawn area we suggest you contact the Layritz Nurseries. If they take on the job they guarantee results.

Esquimalt Swimmer Missing

Esquimalt resident Donald Dillon, 26, of 816 Dunsmuir, went swimming Wednesday at West Bay — and that's the last that has been seen or heard of him.

Esquimalt police are still investigating, but say no trace of the man has yet been found.

Donald Vickeray, of the same address, with whom Mr. Dillon has been staying while he was looking for a job, said the missing man's clothing is still in the house.

Both men are employed by Brodie's Bakery Ltd. Mr. Dillon had been at the job only two days when he was reported missing.

350 Involved

Strike Notice Given

Unionized laborers and bricklayers in Greater Victoria have given 48 hours strike notice.

Some 50 bricklayers and 300 laborers working for 30 firms are involved.

Both laborers' and bricklayers' unions passed strike votes Wednesday by large majorities. The laborers served notice Wednesday and the bricklayers Thursday.

STRIKE ANY TIME

Two days after giving notice they can legally strike at any time.

Local 2 of the Bricklayers International of America is asking for a 50-cent-an-hour wage increase, plus fringe benefits.

Bricklayers in Greater Victoria now receive $3.51 per hour.

SEEK PARITY

The laborers union is seeking parity with members of the same union in other parts of B.C. The laborers now receive $2.56 per hour, and are asking an increase to $2.84 an hour, with a further increase to $3.24 next March.

Nationwide Testing Plan Involves Sooke Pupils

Pupils of Glen Lake elementary school will participate in a nationwide intelligence and skill-testing program this fall.

Publisher Thomas Nelson and Sons is conducting the program to develop a new, all-Canadian standard in IQ and basic skills of schoolroom work.

The tests will be administered Oct. 15 to Nov. 15.

Sales Pitch

Jet for City Brings Laugh

The finance committee Thursday gleefully squelched an attempt by an Eastern aircraft company to peddle the city a giant De Havilland Comet jet with a $120,000 price tag.

The committee easily resisted a sales pitch from Bob Quigley Aircraft Limited which offered the four-engined, ex-RCAF monoplane to Victoria as a "public relations or tourist attraction, a museum, a static display or a memorial park."

"Does the thing actually fly?" asked a flabbergasted committee member.

He was informed that, while

was told in Victoria Thursday. Work done by the Rainbow Christian Fellowship, 27 Olympia, was described to an astonished city health committee meeting by Ald. Percy Frampton.

The story came to light this week.

A city painter, hired by the fellowship some months ago to work on the home, was so impressed by the work being done by the three women responsible for it, that he halved his bill and wrote a letter to city council.

The letter, which pleaded with the city to give the fellowship relief from its property taxes, was turned over to the committee which in its turn passed it on to Ald. Frampton for study and report.

Ald. Frampton was impressed with what he found. The comfortable stone-fronted home was cheerful and spotless, the 12 teen and pre-teen girls comprising the fellowship's "family" were happy and well cared for.

Shutting all publicity, the home had been operating as a haven for the distressed for the past 25 years.

Never once had they gone to the community for money, though they operate at times on a budget that is frighteningly slim.

Never had the home contracted a debt for anything, waiting until sufficient donations had been received to completely cover the intended purchase.

No Salaries

Never in the 25 years of operation have the three dedicated women who direct it paid themselves a salary.

Ald. Clyde Savage summed up the committee's feelings thus:

"I think this is astonishing! How wonderful it is to have people in the community doing this kind of work without constantly coming to the taxpayers for money."

Ald. Lily Wilson felt the same way:

"They won't ask for money from anyone," she said. "The Family and Children's Service has occasionally used their services and found them excellent."

Nobody Refused

It was pointed out, too, that while the fellowship received the usual funds for children who were wards of the government or municipality, they never turned a girl down because no money was available.

Ald. Frampton said the original letter to council suggested the city grant the home tax relief, which in their case amounted to $482 last year.

Despite their warm approval of the fellowship's work, the committee decided there was nothing they could do.

Ald. Goffrey Edgerton summed it up this way: "We have many organizations in need of assistance. If we granted them funds without being asked, who knows where it would stop?"

"How do we draw the line?"

Send Thanks

It was suggested that the home be asked to send in a request for relief, but the committee came to the conclusion that that wouldn't work either.

"I think all we can do is send them a letter of thanks and congratulations," said Ald. Edgerton.

And that's where the committee left off.

The women and children in the house Thursday went peacefully on with the business of living, utterly unaware of the encomiums being sung in their praise in City Hall.

Her 'Family'

Viola Penner, who has made the children and their home the focal point of her life for the past 18 years, spoke enthusiastically and lovingly about her "family" of 12.

"Our children come to us for a variety of reasons," she said. "They come from broken homes, or the welfare people may bring them. If there's room, we never turn anyone away."

She and Emily Philpot — another worker at the home of 18 years' standing — serve under the direction of Adene Campbell, secretary-treasurer of the fellowship.

Musical Sidewalks 'Invade My Rights'

By JIM BRAHAN

Continual erosion of citizens' rights by hucksterism must stop, a retired Victoria contractor angrily decided Thursday. And he did something about it.

INVASION?

"I regard the speakers on Yates Street as a serious invasion of my rights. I should not be expected to wear ear plugs when walking along any street in Victoria," he said.

NOT AGAINST MUSIC

"I do not think broadcasting should be allowed on Yates any more than we should be huckstered by loudspeakers in every car lot, grocery, or real estate office."

"I absolutely believe they are invading my right to walk on the street," he said.

Mr. Smith explained that he is not against music, but he believes it is up to himself to choose the time and place he would like to hear it.

NO CHOICE

The streets belong to the public, he asserted, and he cannot see why he should have to listen to music not of his choice.

"If they keep it in the stores then I can either enter and hear it, or stay out. But I have that choice."

"When it is piped out onto the street I have no choice but to listen, or wear a set of earplugs," he said.

COURTEOUS

The lone picketer began his stand in mid-afternoon Thursday and continued until about 5:30.

Victoria police constable Bob Madson warned the picketer he would have to keep moving during his picketing and the doorsteps.

"Perhaps we could loan it to Flying Phil," said Ald. A. C. Savage.

"These aircraft," the letter said, "are representative of our first four-engine jet aircraft to go into use . . . and the aircraft in question flew many of our VIPs including the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh."

"Maybe we could use it to fly the deputy mayor around," said Deputy Mayor Cecil Parrott.

He was informed that, while a one-man picketing campaign protesting loudspeaker music on the 700-block Yates was begun by W. G. Smith, 39, Belmont.

"I regard the speakers on Yates Street as a serious invasion of my rights. I should not be expected to wear ear plugs when walking along any street in Victoria," he said.

Mr. Smith also has a petition and is collecting signatures of those in opposition to the music on the street.

"I haven't counted the signatures yet, but there are quite a few. I found many people in sympathy."

French Crepe Chosen by Bride

Judith Ann Cunningham became the bride of James Glenfield Dobell in a double-ring ceremony at Metropolitan United Church.

Rev. Laura Butler officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David L. Cunningham, Oliver Street and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dobell of Pontrilas, Sask.

The bride chose a gown of French crepe and chantilly lace styled on empire lines. The bodice featured a portrait neckline edged with scalloped lace and sequins. A cathedral train extended from the shoulders and her chapel veil misted from a floral headpiece. Pink roses and stephanotis were in her colonial bouquet.

The Misses Laurie Bennett, Jackie Davies and Joan Salmon attended the bride in floor-length gowns of marine blue satin, cut on empire lines. They wore floral headpieces with green tulle and carried colonial bouquets of pink gladiolas. Their sterling silver engraved bracelets were the gift of the bride.

Mr. Vern Krahn was best man and Mr. William Laurie and Mr. Herb Neuls were ushers.

A three-tiered wedding cake made by the bride's mother centred the head table at the reception.

Special Classes

EDMONTON (CP) — Special classes for unwed mothers-to-be to keep them up on their studies during pregnancy are being considered by the Edmonton public school board.

A. E. Höhol, superintendent of student personnel services, says there probably would be enough unmarried mothers to make such classes feasible.

Many unwed mothers return to school after they have had their child, he says.

Mr. Höhol says the board is taking more responsibility for counselling and helping unwed teen-age mothers. The school works with the family and arranges for assistance from family, welfare and other community agencies.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Hemeon and two of their children, of Don Mills, Ont., are visiting Mrs. Hemeon's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas Burchett, at their Arbutus Road home. Pictured are

18 Daily Colonist, Victoria, Friday, July 6, 1968

Wed in St. Mark's

Baskets of pink and white taffeta-length suit in pale mint! Mr. and Mrs. Scott will make glorious decorated St. Mark's green tweed, which she had their home in Victoria. Anglican Church for the recent bride herself. With it she wore Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Ward, Asquith Street, and the son of Mrs. Margaret E. Scott, North Park Street.

Canon Robert Willis officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Ward, Asquith Street, and the son of Mrs. Margaret E. Scott, North Park Street.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, chose a floor-length gown of peau de soie, styled with bell-shaped sleeves, and scooped neckline. The skirt was appliquéd with seed pearls and chantilly lace. A full-length train fell from a dainty bow at the back waist. Her chapel-length sash-like illusion was held by a pearl and crystal crown. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink rosebuds and wore a drop pearl necklace and pearl stud earrings.

Maid of honor, Miss Karrie Rant, and bridesmaids, Miss Penny Connor and Miss Brenda Ward, were in sheath style dresses of turquoise peau de soie, with matching lace jackets. Little Tracy Payne, flower girl, was in a full-skirted frock of the same color with lace jacket. The senior attendants wore pearl bars, the gift of the bride, and carried white carnations. The flower girl wore the bride's gift of a gold bracelet and a band of white flowers was in her hair.

Mr. Jim Beattie was best man and Mr. Ken Jones and Mr. Pete Sparrow were ushers. A reception followed at the Club Tango. Red rosebuds and white tapers surrounded the three-tiered wedding cake. Mr. R. F. Ward, the bride's uncle, proposed the toast.

Leaving on a honeymoon trip to the interior, the bride wore a

I am not ready for the rocking chair yet. What shall I do? — GETTING NOTIONS

Dear Getting Notions: Tell your husband precisely what you told me. Make it clear you are not threatening him, but that you are gravely concerned about your ability to remain faithful to him. Explain that if he is interested in preserving his marriage he must see a doctor — perhaps in another city. A trip to the Mayo Clinic or Johns Hopkins for a "complete physical" is always a good idea.

It is not normal for a man in his early 40s to be completely disinterested in sex. Your husband should learn if there is something physically wrong with him. If he refuses to see a doctor, I suggest that YOU see one, and ask his advice.

Dear Heartache: If all the women who write to me on this same subject were lined up, they would reach from Anchorage to Amarillo.

My advice is to play dead dumb and blind when you go over there. Enjoy your grandchildren and take them to your house whenever possible.

If your son complains to you about his wife's housekeeping, tell him to talk to her, not you. It is their problem and you should stay out of it.

Nurses Can Be Trained In Two Years, Says Nun

MONTREAL (CP) — A Toronto nursing sister said this week that a good nurse can be trained in two years, rather than the usual three.

Mature women between 30 and 50 years of age seem especially suited to such training, Sister Mary Herbert of St. Joseph's hospital said in an interview during the Canadian Nurses' Association meeting.

Her statement resulted from the experience of officials of the Quo Vadis nursing school. Students from this school carry out their practical training at St. Joseph's.

Quo Vadis was established in 1964 by the nurses' training committee of the Ontario Catholic Hospital Association. It was designed only for students in the 30-to-50 age bracket whose education included Grade 12.

Sister Mary Herbert said Quo Vadis seeks particularly to attract married women with grown-up families, women ready to begin new careers. Single women of the same bent also were sought.

Sister Mary Herbert, a Roman Catholic nun, said the first graduation exercises at Quo Vadis will be held next September. Out of 20 students starting in 1964, 19 have earned their way into the last stages of training — a most encouraging result, said the Sister. This was especially so in view of the average age of the students, 46.

'I Pull Her Nose, Making It Grow'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Yoush, it's great comin' home," said James Durante, "when ya got somethin' to come home to."

Durante now is home from his half-year of wandering about the country to earn a living with his violent, endearing brand of comedy. Such has been his life for most of his 73 years. The difference is that now he has a wife and daughter to return to.

"And whata diff'rence it is!" he exclaims. "Them two make all the work worth it."

SUMMERS HOME

Durante averages six months of playing the top night clubs of the U.S., usually returns to his Beverly Drive home in late spring. He'll take a local date; last week he was playing Humpty Dumpty in NBC's a special, Through The Looking Glass which will appear Nov. 6.

Otherwise, he preserves his summers, especially the three months he spends with wife Marge and daughter Cece at Del Mar, 100 miles south.

"I wouldn't miss that for the world," said Jimmy. "In the mornin' I'm out fishin' in the surf; I love it. Then in the afternoon I go to the race-track. I don't bet much, 'cause you can't win anyway when you play nine races. And that daily double! murder!"

NOSE QUESTIONABLE

The Durantes adopted Cece four years ago. She can do no wrong in his eyes. The only thing about her he deprecates is the nose.

"Howlya like that lid?" he snarled. "All she got for a nose is a button. It's no bigger a simple f--- keep patlin' on it, toothin' that'll make it grow. Nuttin' happens."

Come early autumn Jimmy will once more be resuming his vagabondage. His wife and daughter sometimes join him in resorts such as Miami and Puerto Rico, but most of the time they stay home.

STILL HAS KNACK

Jimmy seems to have lost none of the explosive energy for which he has been noted throughout his long career.

He retains the ability to win any audience. He learned that while playing theatres and cafes in New York during his youth.

Jimmy Durante and daughter

"Ya hadda be on your toes in came out?" Practicly the whole audience would shout: "da manager!"

"The guys would sit through a few shows and know all your lines. You'd say, 'I put a lead nickel in the slot at the automat and what dya think?'

Round Girls Coming Back?

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Are round girls coming back? Yes, indeed, if actress Maureen Arthur has anything to say about it.

Maureen, who soon will be seen in How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying, is round in all the right places, and thinks all females should be the same.

Like the late Marilyn Monroe, Maureen—a blue-eyed blonde—wears her undies—undergarments—on-screen and off.

Says our fair-haired actress:

"I like the feeling of just being a girl. A girl can't feel very feminine."

in girdles and other restraining lingerie. The wardrobe people with the picture agreed with me and designed all my clothes so I wouldn't have to wear anything underneath them.

"After this picture is released either my kind of well-rounded body will return to favor or audiences will be offended. I don't know which it will be."

Maureen, a New Yorker who is making her debut after playing in the stage version of How to Succeed for 2½ years, is accompanying the latter. She just lets herself go—beautifully.

"Hollywood, of all places, she is dead set against the same slender mold," she said just the other day.

"Audrey Hepburn, slim-hipped, flat-breasted look now being foisted on American females by fashion houses and in advertising."

Most women of course are not built like Audrey. But in order to imitate the little-boy look they starve themselves with crash diets and stuff themselves into iron-clad undergarments.

Happily, Maureen is unwilling to do the dirty work and unable to accomplish the latter. She just lets herself go—beautifully.

"Hollywood, of all places,

she is dead set against the same slender mold," she said just the other day.

"Audrey Hepburn, slim-hipped, flat-breasted look now being foisted on American females by fashion houses and in advertising."

"Sandra Dee and Ann-Margret, for instance, were much rounder when they started out, but in recent pictures they've been slimmed way down. They looked better the other way."

It is Miss Arthur's premise that more women have more masculine in the absence of more rounded curves than in company with a girl who is trying to look like a boy.

Garden Notes

Foliar Feeding

By M. V. CHESNUT

Ten or 15 years ago there was considerable excitement in the gardening world over a new technique in applying fertilizer to plants. Rather than putting the fertilizer in the ground to be taken up by the roots, the chemicals were dissolved in water and applied as a weak nutrient spray to the topgrowth, where it is taken in through the leaf pores. This is known as foliar feeding, and can be compared with the intravenous feeding of hospital patients who can't take nourishment by mouth.

I took a crack at foliar feeding when it first came out, with some rather dramatic results. Just how much of the stimulated growth was due to the fertilizer absorbed by the leaves and how much through the roots, I couldn't say, for there was always a certain amount of drip to the ground.

I tried several brands of high-test soluble fertilizers and, while I couldn't detect any superiority in one brand over another, the growth and general health of the plants was obviously better than in unsprayed plants.

Since that time, I have gone a bit sour on foliar feeding, not because there is anything wrong with it, but because it doesn't fit in with my own slap-dash brand of gardening. The technique has its uses, it is true, just like the intravenous feeding in medicine, but for general everyday use, I can't say I am overly enthusiastic.

The trouble lies in the natural-born shiflessness of the human animal. Foliar feeding works like a charm when you keep it up, washing down the leaves of the plants on a regular, fixed schedule with a fine, misty spray of the fertilizer solution. It's when you get careless and miss a few feedings that trouble arises.

I suspect that, when the plants receive all their necessary nutrients by way of the leaf pores, the roots don't have very much work to do. They go all fat and lazy and, instead of foraging around scratching for a living, they just stay put, doing nothing at all except anchoring the plant in the soil. Certainly the root system of plants fed in this way was not very extensive—more like the fleshy roots you get on a slip rooted in water—and nothing like so well equipped with root hairs as a plant grown in normal fashion.

With a skimpy root system, the plant is in trouble as soon as its regular meals through its leaves are not forthcoming.

The roots are not equipped to take over the job on short notice and the plant starts looking very sorry for itself. Human nature being what it is, such missed feeds are bound to occur, which is why I rule out foliar feeding for routine backyard gardening.

It is when emergency cases of severe malnutrition occur that foliar feeding becomes really useful to the home gardener. When pale, yellowing leaves with prominent dark green veins signal a serious lack of iron in the diet, when the ash-gray leaf margins on gooseberries indicate a lack of potash, and when the typical symptoms of magnesium shortage show up in tomatoes and other plants, the quickest way to put them right is by feeding the missing element by leaf. This will keep the plants alive while their soil diet is being corrected.

Water also can be taken in through the leaf pores, and the best nursing care you can give any newly planted tree or shrub, particularly evergreens, is to freshen up the foliage with a jet of water every time you have the hose out. Sweet peas, garden peas and runner beans also respond in dramatic fashion when sprayed over with clear cool water in the evening following a hot day.

Another Fable by ARTHUR HOPPE

Nice People Get Together

Once upon a time there was a little old lady named Miss Nettie Nicely, who was just about the nicest person in the whole wide world.

From sunup to sundown, she went about smiling and humming and doing nice things, like feeding stray cats and crocheting potholders for the culturally disadvantaged. She was a happy example to one and all.

Then one day her dear friend, Miss Little Lately, who was also very nice, said to her over afternoon tea, "Wouldn't it be nice if everybody were nice?"

"Land o' Goshen," said Miss Nettie, surprised. "Isn't everybody nice?"

"I'm afraid not, dear," said Miss Nettie with a sigh. "There are a few mean people who cause all the world's troubles. Perhaps we nice people should get together and encourage them to be nice."

"It would," agreed Miss Nettie, nodding thoughtfully, "be the nice thing to do."

So the two ladies organized The Society of Nice People. At first they were the only members and Miss Nettie found plenty of time to feed stray cats and crochet potholders in between writing letters to the editor saying it would be nice if people were nice.

But the Society quickly grew. Its motto, "Be Nice," was attractive. Its manifesto, "A Nicer World through Nicer People," was logically unassailable. And, besides, by joining you got a little membership card which officially certified you as being nice.

Soon, Miss Nettie didn't have time to crochet potholders any more. She was too busy appearing on television explaining the Society's point of view. "We just wish," she would say with a little wistful smile, "that people would be nicer."

And still the Society grew. At last a national convention was called to adopt a constitution and bylaws and to set up a procedure for screening applicants. "After all," said Miss Nettie, "we can't just let anybody in. We have to be sure they're nice."

After a brief floor fight, Miss Nettie was elected president and Miss Little sergeant-at-arms. Miss Nettie, carried away by the spirit of the throng, delivered a militant speech decrying the mean people and demanding they reform. All the nice people present gave her a standing ovation.

The strategy committee called for a mass march on the UN to promote the cause of niceness. Miss Nettie herself led the huge procession, fire in her eye.

And when a young heckler called her "a Commie dupe," she lost her temper, loosed her placard (which said, "Be Nice") and bashed him over the head with it.

"It's obvious," she said grimly to reporters afterward, "that anybody who doesn't belong to our Society isn't a nice person. And they ought to be strung up by the thumbs."

Which, when you get right down to it, isn't very nice.

Moral: In unity lies strength. And a lot of other headaches, too.

'Er, By the Way...'

SYDNEY HARRIS

In his diverting autobiography, Morris Ernst has an amusing sketch about the social woes of a lawyer who can't go out to a dinner party without being stared into a corner and asked for some free legal advice.

As soon as people learn he is an attorney, he writes, a strange gleam enters their eyes, and a few minutes later the conversation has taken a not-so-subtle turn to income tax, apartment leases, divorce laws, and manufacturing regulations.

"The same thing here," he shrugs. "The minute people find out that I'm an architect, they begin picking my brains furiously about their houses. I'm thinking of spending my vacation in an Eskimo igloo."

Let me submit that the case of the professional writer is even more dire. Not only does almost everyone have a novel or a play or a poem laid away lovingly in a dresser drawer, but everyone has a young relative who is bursting with a desire for literary fame — if only he had the right connections."

As a first move, says Erikson, Burrum Heads will do everything possible to keep people away from the town.

As a start, a section of a new road that has just been completed to the town will be torn up.

"It's much too good," says Erikson.

A fellow antiprogress association member has plans to cut the power lines. Another plans to repeatedly cut telephone lines so that technicians will get tired of repairing the breaks.

One of the first aims of the association is to close a trailer park near the town and declare it a sand-fly sanctuary.

Erikson said that his fellow committee members were not at all pleased with him. His job is to stop publicity but somehow just the reverse has happened.

He has been asked to resign.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Bubbly Heir Woos Ira

LONDON (NANA) — Prince Ira Fürstenberg was pursued to London by the Margaux d'Alas, the son of the owner of all that lovely Heidaic champagne. "It's serious," Ira admitted while we tea-ed and toast-ed at Claridge's Hotel where the princess is staying elegantly while locationing with her Matchless picture for Dame de la Marquise. The romance with the marquis and the twice-wed socialite-acress is a two-year thing," said Ira. "But he lives in Rehems (France), and I live in Rome, and God knows what life is going to do. I take marriage with great calmness." Meaning that she is in no hurry. And who can blame her? Married at 15 to Prince Heidek, two children before 20. Then a stretch with Count Romy Schneider. And now a movie star. She has done about everything. "My father," she confided, "said one never regrets the things one has done, only what one hasn't done."

Romy Schneider has marriage on her mind with 42-year-old German actor Harry Meyen, both of them currently emoting in Triple Cross in Paris. When the job is done, they will live in Berlin where he has a home and where she started her film career . . . Alain Delon, incidentally, wife Nathalie, and their child will be living in the villa at St. Tropez that Romy rented last summer. Romy and the handsome French actor were engaged for five years, were known as the little prince and princess of Monte Carlo—they owned a home there—before Alain switched maidens in mid-stream and married Nathalie.

If you are wondering whatever happened to Faye Emerson, she went to Majorca for a year, three years ago, and she's still there. She lives alone and breaks the happy monotony with long car trips through little countries like Russia and Spain. It doesn't look as though she wants to return to New York and the rat race of a television career.

Village Hit By Poison

ARGYLE, Minn. (AP) — closed. There are few cars moving on the streets. We're not bothered by sightseers; apparently they're scared to come into Argyle. "It's really pretty quiet here."

WITH FRIENDS

All families with children left town. They moved in with friends and relatives at farms and in neighboring towns, and some took quarters in hotels and motels in area communities.

PRECAUTIONS

Personnel from the U.S. Air Force base at Grand Forks, N.D., set up an emergency hospital in the city auditorium at nearby Warren, in case it is needed.

MOSQUITOES

A housewife estimated that about two-thirds of the residents of Argyle, population 800, fled late Wednesday and overnight after it became known that the wrong chemical, parathion, was used in aerial spraying to combat mosquitoes.

"There are only a few die-hards left," she added. "Several stores and business places are closed. There are few cars moving on the streets. We're not bothered by sightseers; apparently they're scared to come into Argyle. "It's really pretty quiet here."

Precautions continued, however.

Dr. E. E. Punala of Warren, acting Marshall County health officer, said Argyle residents were advised to water down their grass, shrubbery and trees and to scrub exposed clothing. Villagers' fire trucks were directed to hose down streets and public property and to help homeowners. Punala described parathion as "quite a lethal poison."

Parathion is used as an insecticide in farming areas.

B.C. Won't Buy Voteless Bank Shares

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Thursday the provincial government is not interested in investing in shares of the proposed Bank of British Columbia unless it has voting power on the board.

While shares in the B.C. bank would be a "wonderful investment," the government could not avoid its responsibility to the public by investing in common shares with no voting rights, he said.

"As fiscal agent (for government accounts) you can't avoid your responsibility. If we invested public money in common shares they would have to be voting shares," Premier Bennett said.

The premier declined to comment on other proposed changes in the Bank Act until the bill has been brought down in the House of Commons.

"I haven't had an opportunity to study it yet—I may have something to say after the bill is down," he said.

Mr. Bennett, who originally was announced in his capacity as minister of finance that B.C. would buy 25 per cent of the B.C. bank shares, said Ottawa has already been notified that B.C. will not invest in the bank.

If the government bought shares without having any voting rights, he asked, "how could you be responsible for public money?"

Western Bank Wins Approval from Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—A bill incorporating the Bank of Western Canada was passed by the Senate Thursday. It was the first new bank charter granted by Parliament since 1953.

The bill was passed by the Commons Tuesday after two years of delays in both houses and needs only royal assent to become law.

Hellyer

Minister Pinned Over Brass Shuffle

It's Supremo Hellyer Now

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—To the House of Commons, it's Supremo Hellyer now.

Conservative defense critic Gordon Churchill, himself a former defense minister, performed the christening ceremony Thursday with a question in the House.

Was Defence Minister Paul Hellyer, now self-promoted to commander-in-chief, he asked?

Mr. Hellyer, grinned, shrugged, didn't answer.

Former Conservative justice minister Davie Fulton fired the opening round.

It signalled the first time the opposition has tried zero-ing in on the double-jumping of Commodore Ralph "Spike" Hernessey over the heads of four rear admirals to vice-admiral and comptroller-general at Canadian Forces Headquarters.

How come, asked Mr. Fulton, that three senior officers had been retired before their time?

Did it have anything to do with the Hellyer instance on forces integration?

(The three officers, Lieut.-Gen. Robert Morceau, 49, vice-chief of staff; Vice-Admiral Kenneth Dyer, 50, chief of personnel; and Lieut.-Gen. Frank J. Fleury, comptroller general. All were involved in the Tuesday reshuffle of the CFTHQ high command which I am p-frogged. Vice-Admiral Hernessey to next in line as chief of defence staff.)

Prickly question, Fulton's. And Speaker Lucien Lamoureux knew it, ruled it out of order.

Early Parley Call

Britain, India Urge Truce

LONDON (AP)—India and Britain joined Thursday night in calling for a Viet Nam truce and a peace conference at Geneva.

The prime ministers of the two Commonwealth countries Indira Gandhi and Harold Wilson—fly next week to Moscow to enlist Soviet support for an early peace parley in Geneva.

Britain and Russia are co-chairmen of the Geneva conference on Indo-China. India presides over the International Control Commission assigned to check the agreements in Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia worked out at the Geneva conference of 1954.

PROSPECTS BLEAK

Prospects of Mrs. Gandhi and Wilson succeeding seemed bleak judging by a declaration issued in Bucharest, Romania, after summit talks between leaders of the Soviet Union and six European Communist states. These Warsaw Pact nations demanded what they called American "criminal aggression" against North Viet Nam and pledged all-out aid for Hanoi—including any military volunteers the North Vietnamese ask for.

HARD TO CONVENE

In Ottawa Prime Minister Pearson said Thursday he thinks it would be hard to reconvene the Geneva conference on Viet Nam with any chance of success under the conditions apparently attached to such a step by India.

He said this is his "first reaction" to an Indian proposal that the conference be reconvened. He wasn't aware that the conditions attached to the Indian suggestion had been discussed in advance with the external affairs department here.

TALKS WITH HO

The crisis in Viet Nam and all its implications preoccupied statesmen and politicians in key Asian, European and American countries. Former French minister Jean Sainteny conferred in Hanoi with President Ho Chi Minh, presumably to sound him out on a settlement.

In Kyoto, Japan, Secretary of State Dean Rusk offered an unmistakable warning to China. Any "insane" nuclear attack on an American ally in the region will bring retaliation "with whatever means would be required."

He said there has, however, been no evidence to suggest Peking may be contemplating such an attack.

Viet Nam was the theme of

Strike Halting U.S. Airlines

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Government efforts to avert a nationwide airline strike at 6 a.m. today collapsed Thursday and President Johnson personally appealed for both sides to reach a settlement.

The walkout, which will ground 60 per cent of the nation's commercial flights, was called against United, Eastern, Trans World, National and Northwest Airlines.

Negotiations between the five airlines and the International Association of Machinists broke off in midafternoon, leaving the union free to go ahead with the strike at 6 a.m. local time.

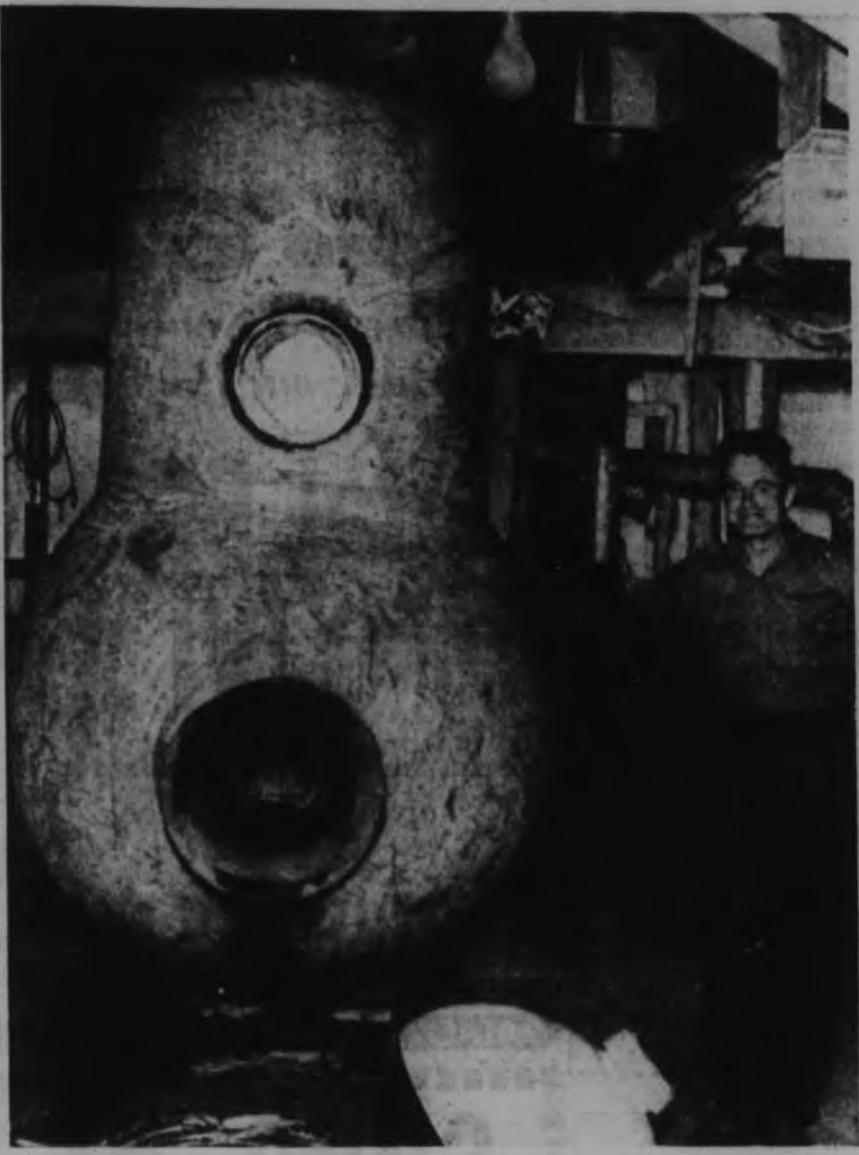

Despite the president's plea, a union spokesman said the walkout was still on.

In a statement issued in Texas, Johnson said "the serious implications of this dispute make it imperative that the parties try to reach a prompt settlement."

Johnson also marshaled federal facilities to assure that air transport is available for military requirements, to keep the mails moving and to "minimize inconvenience to the travelling public."

The Civil Aeronautics Board, acting on Johnson's orders, called to a meeting representatives of airlines which would not be affected by the strike.

CAB officials explored the "capabilities" of those carriers as affects passenger, mail and cargo hauling.

Backyard Submariner Soon to Take Plunge

NANAIMO — Making your own cabin cruiser in the back garden is a pretty extensive project, but T. D. Birmingham of Nanoo Bay has gone a step further — he's making a submarine.

The underwater craft is not yet finished, but it has undergone a 2,000 foot pressure test in Jervis Inlet, off the Mainland coast.

It is two and a half years ago since Mr. Birmingham first started on his project.

He modeled a half hemisphere out of clay, wire and cement to use as a form for his miniature submarine.

Over the model he made two hollow hemispheres out of

Fibreglass Craft Takes Test

A fibreglass craft which were finally welded together to form a giant "tennis ball," 50 inches in diameter on the inside.

The ball is two and a quarter inches thick with three portholes made from four-inch plexiglass.

An elongated collar around the top, and a platform on the bottom are still to be made complete the hull.

An electric motor either side running on batteries will provide the power. The batteries will be carried on the platform on the bottom of the submarine.

It is anticipated the site will be near the Cowichan exhibition grounds.

A motion, made later at the same meeting, to make the swimming pool the first phase in a multi-purpose recreation centre, was defeated overwhelmingly.

Duncan recreation commissioner Mel Massey complained it appears to me that we have given up over night a recreation complex.

"I feel there is no adequate planning. Let's study it a bit further."

North Cowichan Commissioner Norman Bevan replied: "We need so many things and it does not matter where we begin."

In reference to the Fuller's Lake ice arena which will be built this year, Mr. Bevan said if another arena would be built in the Duncan area, the Fuller's Lake arena would be sabotaged financially.

He added, "what we are doing is a long term development. The swimming pool is only one of many things that will follow, I hope."

FOR ALL OF US

Three weeks ago when the pressure test was made in Jervis Inlet, one of the deepest spots off the British Columbia coast, the submarine survived a dive to 2,300 feet and let in only a gallon of water.

Mr. Birmingham attributed this to the hatch seal being improperly seated.

No one was in the craft at the time, but Mr. Birmingham says he has no reservations when the time comes.

To sink the craft he attached 1,800 pounds of weights to the bottom on a bar which sheds 1,100 pounds when the weights hits the bottom.

Mr. Birmingham said two men could get inside, but it is really designed for only one.

PROGRESS REPORT

Reeve Donald Morton, answering questions on the arena, and other recreational projects, told the meeting one tennis court and a wading pool have been completed at Fullers Lake Park.

On the matter of sidewalks, he said, "any time a considered plan for sidewalks in Chemainus is put forth it will be given due consideration by council."

Free Swim Classes

Starting Today

The Daily Colonist free swimming classes begin at 10 a.m. today, rain or shine, in Queen Margaret's School pool, Duncan. Classes continue for eight weeks until Aug. 26. Parents driving children to classes may park only at the end of Brownsey Avenue. Parking around the school buildings is not permitted.

AT LADYSMITH

Grade 13 would be provided at the Ladysmith school for the few who might require it, until such time as the new junior college comes to being.

Plan B would call for the continued maintenance of two separate schools as at present.

Plan C calls for continuation of two senior secondary schools with both offering the academic-technical programs, but with the non-academic program centered in Ladysmith.

Plan D would mean continuation of both schools, both offering academic-technical

Tests Being Made

Arsenic from Mine Dump Threat to Fish in Tsolum

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Enough arsenic to pose a threat to fish during a prolonged period has been escaping from the tailings of the Mount Washington copper mine north of Courtenay, it was confirmed Thursday.

and samples of the water spilling over the pond are being taken every two days and sent to Vancouver for analysis, he said.

These laboratory tests are expected to give some indication whether the presence of the arsenic in the water is of a temporary nature or whether it is likely to be there during a prolonged period of time, Mr. Jackson said.

DANGER TO FISH
The biologist said that while he is not prepared to discuss the possibility of the arsenic presenting a health hazard to human beings or farm livestock, he is concerned about the danger to fish.

Toxicity of the water as it leaves the impoundment is approaching the point where it could be poisonous to fish exposed to it for a prolonged period of 30 days, although this water is no doubt diluted somewhat as it flows down the river, said Mr. Jackson.

DEFINITE PRESENCE

He said the department of agriculture's analysis definitely indicates the presence of arsenic in the Tsolum River.

The situation was first made public when Colonist Outdoor Editor Alec Merriman said in his column on June 29 that coho, pink salmon, steelhead and cutthroat trout are threatened by arsenic-laden mine tailings which are spilling out of the mine's impoundment pond.

POLLUTION THREAT

He said then that entomologists in the department of agriculture's pesticides laboratory were testing water in the Tsolum River to see if it was polluted to such an extent as to be harmful to farms which are using water from the river.

Return of Funds, Bonds Sought

Canadian Union Facing International's Garnishees

NANAIMO — Garnishees of claiming assets that have been placed by Hartman membership into a registered society.

EVIDENCE CLAIMED

A statement by the president and secretary of Local 695 Thursday said there was evidence to show there had been an illegal transfer of funds.

President Ken Warde and secretary Stan Simpson said in a newspaper advertisement there is evidence showing death benefit funds had been transferred illegally to an organization known as Nanaimo Hourly Paid Workers Benevolent Society.

BONDS AND FUNDS

The orders allege that $41,612, plus $18,000 in government bonds from Local 695 of the International Union of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Workers.

The garnishee orders were issued against the Local 8 of the breakaway Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, an executive who were former officers of the international union and the Nanaimo Hourly Paid Workers Benevolent Society.

PROTECTING FUNDS

President Ken Warde and secretary Stan Simpson said in a newspaper advertisement there is evidence showing death benefit funds had been transferred illegally to an organization known as Nanaimo Hourly Paid Workers Benevolent Society.

DIDN'T EXIST

Describing the statement, union international representative E. P. O'Neal said no such organization existed at the time funds were transferred to it.

At the same time, he said, an attempt by the same persons responsible for the transfers was made to reduce death benefits to widows and orphans from $500 to $400.

PROTECTING FUNDS

President Ken Warde and secretary Stan Simpson said in a newspaper advertisement there is evidence showing death benefit funds had been transferred illegally to an organization known as Nanaimo Hourly Paid Workers Benevolent Society.

The judgment also asks for delivery of the Local 695's seal, charter, records, accounting books, office furniture, files, and correspondence.

SOCIETIES ACT

Mr. Wickham admitted the establishment of a benevolent society.

"We applied for registration under the Societies Act and transferred funds before registration came through."

He accused Local 695 officers of Trustees of the Lantzville Fire Protection District hired a lawyer to look into the expropriation.

They found it had not been carried out in a legal manner, so they re-expropriated the land themselves.

Apparently the greater Nanaimo water board is governed by a private act, which allows the board to expropriate land by simply passing a bylaw, but the expropriation must be filed in the land registry office in Victoria.

Seized Land Regained

Expropriation Fought at Lantzville

NANAIMO — Eight and a half acres of land at Lantzville have been expropriated twice within a week by two separate public bodies.

A week ago the greater Nanaimo water board expropriated the land formerly owned by a private company, Lantzville Holdings Ltd., because it wanted a large artesian well on the property.

This action upset the residents of Lantzville, most of whom drew their water from the system.

He accused Local 695 officers of

This had not been done, and the trustees expropriated not only the land, but the entire distribution system as well.

Lantzville had been dickering with Lantzville Holdings for sale of the water system, but couldn't reach agreement on price.

The company had maintained it was worth $65,000 but the trustees had the system valued at $37,000.

Lantzville is not part of the territory covered by the Greater Nanaimo Water Board, but the board wanted the 250-gallon per minute well to supplement the rapidly expanding areas of Departure Bay and Wellington.

Twenty-Five Years of Quiet Service

Girls' Haven Built on Faith

By TED PULFORD

The strange heartwarming story of a tiny Christian organization, dedicated to the service of girls from broken homes and adamant in its refusal to seek financial aid.

Esquimalt Swimmer Missing

Esquimalt resident Donald Dillon, 26, of 816 Dunsmuir, went swimming Wednesday at West Bay — and that's the last that has been seen or heard of him.

Esquimalt police are still investigating, but say no trace of the man has yet been found.

Donald Vickery, of the same address, with whom Mr. Dillon has been staying while he was looking for a job, said the missing man's clothing is still in the house.

Both men are employed by Brodie's Bakery Ltd. Mr. Dillon had been at the job only two days when he was reported missing.

350 Involved

Strike Notice Given

Unionized laborers and bricklayers in Greater Victoria have given 48 hours strike notice.

Some 50 bricklayers and 300 laborers working for 30 firms are involved.

Both laborers' and bricklayers' unions passed strike votes Wednesday by large majorities. The laborers served notice Wednesday and the bricklayers Thursday.

STRIKE ANY TIME

Two days after giving notice they can legally strike at any time.

Local 2 of the Bricklayers International of America is asking for a 50-cent-an-hour wage increase, plus fringe benefits.

Bricklayers in Greater Victoria now receive $3.51 per hour.

SEEK PARITY

The laborers union is seeking parity with members of the same union in other parts of B.C.

The laborers now receive $2.56 per hour, and are asking an increase to $2.84 an hour, with a further increase to $3.24 next March.

Nationwide Testing Plan Involves Sooke Pupils

Pupils of Glen Lake elementary school will participate in a nationwide intelligence and skill-testing program this fall.

Publisher Thomas Nelson and Sons is conducting the program to develop a new, all-Canadian standard in IQ and basic skills of schoolroom work.

The tests will be administered Oct. 15 to Nov. 15.

Sales Pitch

Jet for City Brings Laugh

The finance committee Thursday gleefully squelched attempts by an Eastern aircraft company to peddle the city a giant De Havilland Comet jet with a $120,000 price tag.

The committee easily resisted a sales pitch from Bob Quigley Aircraft Limited that offered the four-engined, ex-RCAF monoplane to Victoria as a "public relations or tourist attraction, a museum, a static display or a memorial park."

"Does the thing actually fly?" asked a flabbergasted committee member.

He was informed that, while

was told in Victoria Thursday. Work done by the Rainbow Christian Fellowship, 27 Olympia, was described to an astonished city health committee meeting by Ald. Percy Frampton.

The story came to light this way:

A carpenter, hired by the fellowship some months ago to work on the home, was so impressed by the work being done by the three women responsible for it, that he halved his bill and wrote a letter to city council.

The letter, which pleaded with the city to give the fellowship relief from its property taxes, was turned over to the committee which — in its turn — passed it on to Ald. Frampton for study and report.

Ald. Frampton was impressed with what he found.

The comfortable stone-fronted home was cheerful and spotless, the 12 feet and pre-teen girls comprising the fellowship's "family" were happy and well cared for.

Shunning all publicity, the home had been operating as a haven for the distressed for the past 25 years.

Never once had they gone to the community for money, though they operate at times on a budget that is frighteningly slim.

Never had the home contracted a debt for anything, waiting until sufficient donations had been received to completely cover the intended purchase.

No Salaries

Never in the 25 years of operation have the three dedicated women who direct it paid themselves a salary.

Ald. Clyde Savage summed up the committee's feelings thus:

"I think this is astonishing! How wonderful it is to have people in the community doing this kind of work without constantly coming to the taxpayers for money."

Ald. Harry Wilson felt the same way.

"They won't ask for money from anyone," she said. "The Family and Children's Service has occasionally used their services and found them excellent."

Nobody Refused

It was pointed out, too, that while the fellowship received the usual funds for children who were wards of the government or municipality, they never turned a girl down because no money was available.

Ald. Frampton said the original letter to council suggested the city grant the home tax relief, which in their case amounted to $482 last year.

Despite their warm approval of the fellowship's work, the committee decided there was nothing they could do.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow summed it up this way: "We have many organizations in need of assistance. If we granted them funds without being asked, who knows where it would stop?"

"How do we draw the line?"

Send Thanks

It was suggested that the home be asked to send in a request for relief, but the committee came to the conclusion that that wouldn't work either.

"I think all we can do is send them a letter of thanks and congratulations," said Ald. Edgelow.

And that's where the committee left it.

The women and children in the house Thursday went peacefully on with the business of living, utterly unaware of the encomiums being sung in their praise in City Hall.

Her 'Family'

Viola Penner, who made the children and their home the focal point of her life for the past 18 years, spoke enthusiastically and lovingly about her "family" of 12.

"Our children come to us for a variety of reasons," she said. "They come from broken homes, or the welfare people may bring them. If there's room, we never turn anyone away."

She and Emily Philpott — another worker at the home of 18 years' standing — serve under the direction of A'dene Campbell, secretary-treasurer of the fellowship.

Musical Sidewalks 'Invade My Rights'

By JIM BRAHAN

Continual erosion of citizens' rights by hucksterism must stop, a retired Victoria contractor angrily decided Thursday. And he did something about it.

'INVASION'

"I do not think broadcasting should be allowed on Yates any more than we should be huckstered by loudspeakers in every car lot, grocery, or real estate office.

"I absolutely believe they are invading my right to walk on the street," he said.

Mr. Smith explained that he is not against music, but he wishes it is up to himself to choose the time and place in which he would like to hear it.

NO CHOICE

The streets belong to the public, he asserted, and he cannot see why he should have to listen to music not of his choice.

"If they keep it in the stores then I can either enter and hear it, or stay out. But I have that choice."

"When it is piped out onto the street I have no choice but to listen, or wear a set of earplugs," he said.

COURTEOUS

The lone picketer began his protest in mid-afternoon Thursday and continued until about 5:30.

Victoria police constable Bob Madson warned the picketer he would have to keep moving during his picketing and he

"Perhaps we could loan it to Flying Phil," said Ald. A. C. Savage.

"These aircraft," the letter said, "are representative of our first four-engine jet aircraft to go into use . . . and the aircraft in question flew many of our VIPs including the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh."

"Maybe we could use it to fly the deputy mayor around," said Deputy Mayor Cecil Parrott.

He was informed that, while

A one-man picketing camp could not set his sandwich board upon protesting loud speaker down in front of the stores.

The policeman was courteous but firm, "Mr. Smith repeated.

And he asked: "Where is this all going to end?"

"What if someone wants to spray the air with scented to advertise something or other?"

"I intend to resume my picketing Friday. If someone wants to reprove me I'll let him have the board," said the 61-year-old ex-contractor.

Mr. Smith also has a petition and is collecting signatures of those in opposition to the music on the street.

"I haven't counted the signatures yet, but there are quite a few. I found many people in sympathy."

Somewhere in the interior, a piano tinkles, a door closes softly, a child laughs. There is an atmosphere of security and peace.

But it is clear, after a few minutes, that something far more powerful than these fleeting impressions of comfort and safety is at work in the house. It is mirrored in every word and every expression of Miss Penner's face.

It is the presence of an absolute dedication, an absolute faith that the work of a lifetime is under the care and direction of God.

Miss Penner is frank and direct about her belief.

"When I don't know what to do I just remember what the Bible says: 'Trust in the Lord and do good . . .'"

When you leave the house, you come away convinced that Miss Penner's trust is wisely placed.

Free Food Stall Tapping On Larder Doors Again

Victorians are asked to check their larders for excess food which could be donated to the surplus food stall for its re-opening at 10:30 a.m. July 16 at its former location at the Elks Hall on Cormorant.

Mrs. Joan Price, the stall's new operator, said Thursday all types of surplus foods were needed for the re-opening.

Foods donated by businessmen and homeowners are packaged in hampers and given to welfare recipients.

Six drivers from the Victoria Labor Council have volunteered to pick up donations from residents.

Persons wishing to donate can call Mrs. Price at 479-4870.

B.C. Won't Buy Voteless Bank Shares

By JACK FRY
Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett said Thursday the provincial government that is not interested in investing in B.C. bank shares, said Ottawa has already been notified that it will not invest in the bank. shares of the proposed Bank of British Columbia unless it has shares without having any voting power on the board.

While shares in the B.C. bank could you be responsible for would be a "wonderful investment," the government could not avoid its responsibility to the public by investing in common shares with no voting rights, he said.

"As fiscal agent (for government account) you can't avoid your responsibility. If we invested public money in common shares they would have to be Voting shares," Premier Bennett said.

The premier declined to comment on other proposed changes in the Bank Act until the bill has been brought down in the House of Commons.

"I haven't had an opportunity to study it yet—I may have something to say after the bill is down," he said.

Mr. Bennett, who originally is announced in his capacity as minister of finance that B.C. would buy 25 per cent of the B.C. bank shares, said Ottawa has already been notified that it will not invest in the bank. shares of the proposed Bank of British Columbia unless it has shares without having any voting power on the board.

If the government bought British Columbia unless it has shares without having any voting power on the board.

He called on their assistance in return for past United States and Australian help in two world wars that began in Europe.

He condemned French hostility to American efforts to preserve peace in Asia and said many other European nations whose freedom was ultimately at stake were happy to "coast along" on the U.S. action.

SAME PRINCIPLES

Holt, who arrived here Wednesday night from Washington talks with President Johnson, told a press conference that both the U.S. and Australia think the principles involved in South Viet Nam are the same as those in West Berlin.

He excluded Britain from his major criticism because of its peacekeeping role in Malaysia and other areas, but expressed concern that British troops are not fighting in South Viet Nam and said he fears Britain is losing interest in problems east of Suez.

OPEN SPLIT

He openly split from Prime Minister Wilson's move to disassociate Britain from U.S. bombing raids on oil installations near Hanoi and Haiphong in North Viet Nam.

"I do not think the United States is looking for massive assistance, but it is looking for understanding and recognition that it is carrying out a task of value to the free world as a whole," he said.

The U.S. was justifiably disappointed it had been given so little support.

Hesitant Nations Rapped By Holt

Red Pilots Fire First Air Rockets

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnamese MiG-21s fired missiles at U.S. fighter-bombers Thursday in what U.S. officials believe to be the first Communist use of such air-to-air weapons in the Viet Nam war. The Communist missiles missed, the officials said.

The engagement involving two of the most advanced Soviet-built fighters in North Viet Nam and two U.S. F-105 fighter-bombers occurred 33 miles north-northwest of Hanoi Thursday morning.

Angry shouts from Hanoi citizens were hurled at two captured U.S. airmen, shown manacled together, when they were "paraded through North Viet Nam capital Wednesday." (AP)

Flyers 'Confess' Crimes Viet War 'Dirty, Bad'

TOKYO (UPI) — North Viet Nam today broadcast purported confessions of American pilots downed over the Communist territory.

Another Hanoi broadcast monitored in Saigon said three women, described as workers, called for the execution of captured American servicemen.

The women said in the broadcast, "We must execute these Johnnies."

The Communists news agency VNA said the airmen confessed it was a "dirty and bad" war which is unpopular with Americans and violates both the Geneva agreements and the United Nations charter.

A statement attributed to U.S. Air Force Capt. David Hatcher, 32, of California, begged forgiveness for bombing "schools, hospitals, churches and innocent people."

VNA said Hatcher, flying an

I-105 out of Takli airbase in Thailand, was downed in Yen Bai province May 30, two months after a second prisoner, Navy Cmdr. James Mulligan, 40, of Massachusetts, was captured in Ha Tinh province 20.

Mulligan was said to have been flying an A-4 jet off the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise when he was shot down.

"Since my capture, I have realized that the war which is waged by the United States government is dirty and bad," Hatcher was quoted as saying.

"U.S. aircraft have bombed, under order of the U.S. government, various targets in North Viet Nam, resulting in the damage of dams, dikes, schools, hospitals, churches and innocent people."

"I have to be responsible for these crimes also. I was one of the United States pilots who carried out the criminal order of our government and bombed North Viet Nam."

"Despite the fact we have caused you untold suffering and hatred, I believe that you will win your independence, peace, freedom and sovereignty."

"I hope that this illegal war waged by our government will end soon . . . I wish to report and ask you to forgive me."
